Entrance & Energy Audit

SPECIMEN REPORT · 42' two-bedroom home · main door 256° (pada E5, E zone) · every zone checked and ranked by severity. This is a demonstration on a fictional plan — your own audit is prepared from your own drawing.

MAJOR VASTU DOSHA

This house carries 2 grave defects and 3 significant ones. A grave defect is one the tradition treats as requiring relocation rather than treatment, or links directly to health.

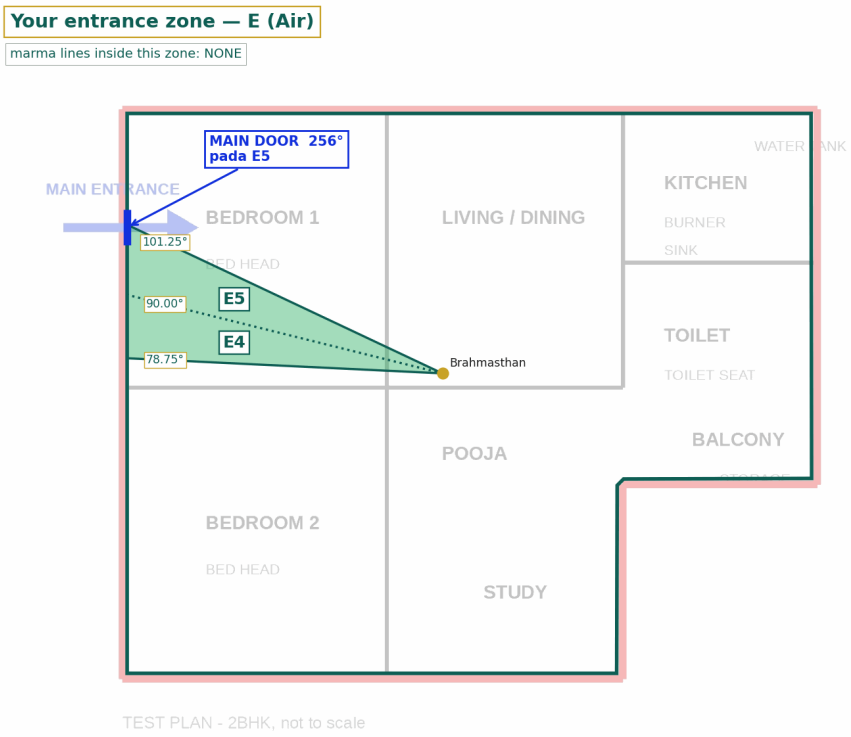
This report tells you what is wrong and where. It does not prescribe remedies — that is a separate report, and it is written only after the house has been read in full.

What was found

Severity	Finding
GRAVE	Overhead water tank in SW SW is the Earth zone and the heaviest direction in the house. Standing water held there is read as a clot: the tradition links SW water to heart and circulation problems more consistently than almost any other defect. A tank belongs in the West or North-West.
GRAVE	Bedroom and bed head in NE North-East governs the mind, clarity and the nervous system. It is one of the two zones a bedroom must avoid. Both the room and the sleeping head fall inside it, and the head lies 0.33 ft from a marma line.
SIGNIFICANT	Main entrance on pada E5 E5 is not one of the eight positive padas. Its recorded effect is a short-tempered household — anger in every respect. Two positive padas, E3 and E4, sit on the same East wall.
SIGNIFICANT	Kitchen and burner in SW Fire placed in the Earth zone. The burner is not where the tradition puts a kitchen — the three Fire zones are SE, SSE and S. This is a defect with a known treatment rather than a relocation.
SIGNIFICANT	Toilet in WSW A toilet disposes of its zone's attributes. WSW owns education and the capacity to save. The seat itself falls on W3, a positive pada.
WATCH	Pooja room in NW NW is a Space zone ruled by Rudra. The taught best zones for a pooja room are NE, NNE, ENE and West. NW is not among them, though it is not destructive either.
WATCH	Bedroom 1 and its bed head in ESE ESE is an Air zone. Excess Air reads as restlessness and headaches — worth noting for whoever sleeps there, not an alarm on its own.
CLEAR	Living / dining in S, on pada S4 A neutral activity in a Fire zone, on one of the eight positive padas. Nothing to address.
CLEAR	Balcony in W, on pada W4 West is Space — gains and profits — and W4 is a positive pada. Open, usable space here is working for the house.

Your entrance — zone E

Only the entrance zone is drawn here. The other fifteen are left out on purpose: this page answers one question.



Reading	Value
Compass degree at the door	256°
Zone · element	E · Air — joy, sociability, mental churn
Pada	E5 (the zone owns E4 and E5)
Among the eight positive padas?	No
Marma lines crossing this zone	None
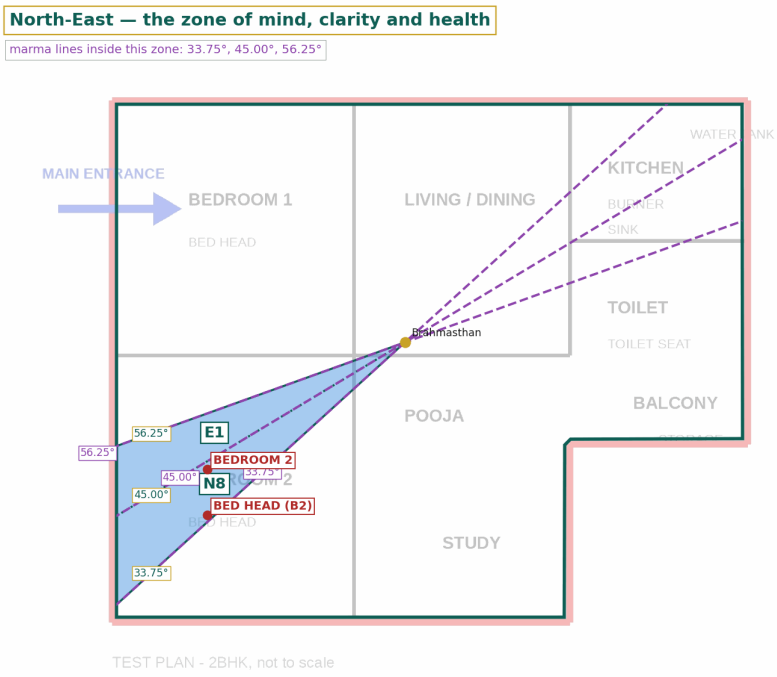
Nearest positive padas	E3 and E4 — same East wall

What E5 brings. Each of the 32 padas carries a resident force, and an opening lets that force expand. The effect recorded for E5 is specific: a short-tempered household — anger in every respect. Not money, not health. Temper.

Its neighbours are very different: E3 gives success, profit and money; E6 and E7 produce failed commitments. Your door sits one pada from each — which is why the reading must be taken five to seven times. No marma line crosses this zone, so the entrance carries a pada defect only, not one compounded by a punctured vital line.

North-East — evaluation

The NE is the zone checked first in any reading. It governs the mind, clarity and the nervous system, and it is where the NE–SW marma family concentrates.



Reading	Value
Zone span	33.75° – 56.25°
Element	Water → Air — clarity of mind, vision
Padas owned	N8 and E1
Marma lines crossing it	33.75°, 45.00°, 56.25° — all three of the NE–SW family
What occupies it	BEDROOM 2, and the bed head of that room
Bed head to nearest marma line	0.33 ft (from the 33.75° line)
Room centre to nearest marma line	0.47 ft (from the 45.00° line)

Evaluation

This is the most serious finding in the plan. Two separate problems coincide in one zone.

First, the room. North-East is one of the two zones a bedroom must avoid. The NE is the seat of the conscious mind and clarity; it is not a zone to sleep in, and the tradition ties persistent health complaints to bedrooms placed here. Whoever sleeps in this room is the person to ask about recurring, low-grade illness.

Second, the lines. All three lines of the NE–SW marma family run through this zone, and the bed head sits 0.33 ft from one of them. At that distance it is not near a line — it is on it.

Either on its own would be worth attention. Together, in the zone that governs the mind, they are the reason this report opens with the verdict it does.

What is not wrong here. There is no toilet and no kitchen in the NE. Those are the two placements the tradition says have no remedy at all — only removal. Your NE problem is a bedroom, and a bedroom can be moved.

The whole plan, zone by zone

Every one of the sixteen zones, what stands in it, and whether the marma family runs through it.

An empty zone is not a fault. A zone is judged by what stands in it and whether that activity belongs there — not by whether it is occupied.

Zone	Element	What occupies it	Marma lines in it
N	Water	—	none
NNE	Water	—	33.75°
NE	Water	BEDROOM 2, BED HEAD (B2)	33.75°, 45.00°, 56.25°
ENE	Air	—	56.25°
E	Air	—	none
ESE	Air	BEDROOM 1, BED HEAD (B1)	123.75°
SE	Fire	—	123.75°, 135.00°, 146.25°
SSE	Fire	—	146.25°
S	Fire	LIVING / DINING	none
SSW	Earth	—	213.75°
SW	Earth	KITCHEN, BURNER, SINK, WATER TANK	213.75°, 225.00°, 236.25°
WSW	Space	TOILET, TOILET SEAT	236.25°
W	Space	BALCONY, STORAGE	none
WNW	Space	—	303.75°
NW	Space	POOJA	303.75°, 315.00°, 326.25°
NNW	Water	STUDY	326.25°

What this means

A plain reading of where this house stands, and what it does and does not tell you.

The short version

Two grave defects — the SW water tank and the NE bedroom — both in zones the tradition treats as decisive. Three significant ones, including the entrance pada. Two worth watching. Two placements that are working well.

This is not a house with nothing wrong, and it is not a house in trouble beyond repair. It is a house with two placements that want moving and several that want treatment — which is the ordinary condition of most homes that have never been read.

What this report deliberately does not do

It prescribes nothing. You will not find a tape colour, a metal, a rod or a paint shade anywhere in these pages, and that is on purpose. A verdict and a prescription are different documents:

- a remedy written against one finding, without the rest of the house in view, can work against another — reducing one zone while feeding an element that is already over-supplied;
- the order matters. Some corrections do nothing until another is done first, and that sequence can only be set once every finding is known;
- two of these findings are answered by moving an object, not by treating it. Nothing applied to a surface changes a marma puncture or a tank in the SW.

If you want the corrections, the fuller reports carry them: the zone-by-zone remedies, the room-by-room do's and don'ts, and a priority sequence that says which to do first and what each one serves.

A note on your reading

This audit is only as good as the compass degree you gave us. 256° places the door 5.3° into the E5 span and E6 begins nearby, so a reading off by a few degrees could land on a different pada. The zone findings are more robust — a few degrees will not move a bedroom out of the NE — but if you took fewer than five readings, or took them beside an iron gate, a meter box or a parked vehicle, take them again.
